Dear Colleagues,

Greetings! Thank you for attending our first Rewards and Recognition event last month, and CONGRATULATIONS to the winners and those who were nominated. It was an inspiring program! Recognizing our team and people—a hallmark of University Services.

Spring is finally here and employees across University Services are getting ready for the end of the academic year, highlighted by Reunions and Commencement activities. University Services provides many essential services throughout the festive two weeks—everything from meals and housing, wrist banding and key cards, to printed Reunion/Commencement materials, buses and carts, and managing the formal graduation ceremonies. President Eisgruber, in his graduation address, often highlights the number of meals served and the large collective of committed employees who make it possible for our graduating students and alumni to enjoy the festivities and to celebrate graduation with family and friends. This work takes weeks, sometimes months, of preparation and many hours of service.

As we complete our final preparations, I want to take a moment to thank you each of you, in advance and to encourage those who aren’t already committed, to join the University Services Reunions and Commencement team. Sign up on our Get Involved website.

Best wishes as we enter the final months of the academic year!

Amy Campbell
Assistant Vice President for Campus Services
Office of the VP & University Services Administration

23 Staff Members Honored at Inaugural Rewards and Recognition Event
Thank you to all staff who attend the first University Services Employee Rewards and Recognition Event on March 22. Twenty-three staff members, including 20 non-managers and three managers, were honored in areas of Service Excellence, Efficiency and Effectiveness, Team and People, and Diversity and Inclusion.

Please see this issue's special bonus section for award winners and photo highlights of the event. Additional photos, as well as a video of the event is available online.

Welcome James Kim
University Services IT is pleased to announce that James Kim has accepted the role of Senior Application Developer. James will come to Princeton from the Stevens Institute of Technology where he served as Data Analyst/Web Developer. Previously, he was Financial Systems Analyst/Web Programmer at Drexel University and a Systems Administrator at the University of Pennsylvania. James provides a solid and well-rounded background and skill in the areas of web development, database/server administration, project management and data analytics. We look forward to James joining our University Services team beginning April 10.

Diversity and Inclusion Salons
The next D&I Salon will take place on Wednesday, April 12 from 9 am to 10:30 am and features special guest Judy Jarvis, Director of the LGBT Center.

The March D&I Salon, which was canceled due to inclement weather, has been rescheduled for Wednesday, May 3 from 2 pm to 3:30 pm. Special guests include Alison Boden, Dean of Religious Life and the Chapel; Vineet Chander, Coordinator for Hindu Life; Sohaib Sultan, Coordinator for Muslim Life; Theresa Thames, Associate Dean; and Matthew Weiner, Associate Dean.

To attend a D&I Salon, register online. For additional information, email Brett Lawrence or Verita Murrill.
Michelin Stars Win Second Annual Tiger Chef Challenge
The second annual Tiger Chef Challenge took place on Friday, March 31 in Dillon Gym. Student teams from each residential college and the Graduate College competed for the coveted Tiger Chef trophy, which this year was awarded to the “Michelin Stars” team from Butler College.

The event also featured a Food Expo with over 30 vendor partners who served healthy, sustainable and innovative food and beverage samples.

Thank you to all who helped make the event successful. The Challenge was streamed live to Facebook and has since been viewed 10,000 times, with comments from Croatia and Morocco. A time-lapse video can be viewed here.

Chef Michael Gattis Wins at Regional Culinary Challenge
On March 5, during the National Association for College and University Food Services (NACUFS) regional conference, Chef Michael Gattis competed against chefs from across the Mid-Atlantic region during the annual Culinary Challenge. His dish, a pan-seared rib pork chop with charred citrus, gingered jicama slaw, and spicy golden beet and radish hash, earned Chef Michael a bronze medal sanctioned by the American Culinary Federation.

Pilot Program: Tiger Tea Room at Firestone Library
Campus Dining is providing an assortment of hot tea, coffee and baked goods at the Library’s Tiger Tea Room, a pilot program that launched last month to provide on-site beverages and snacks to library patrons. The Tiger Tea Room, situated in the DeLong Room on the first level of Firestone Library, will be open Monday through Friday from 10 am to 7 pm and is expected to continue through early June. Credit and debit cards are accepted. Learn more

April is Sustainability Month
Did you know that 59% of the food Campus Dining serves is considered sustainable, and 44% is locally sourced within a radius of 250 miles? Check out the Campus Dining Sustainability Tip Calendar to learn more about Campus Dining’s ongoing efforts and programs and how we, as consumers, can make smarter decisions for a more sustainable future.
World Premiere, The Great Gatsby, Presented by Princeton University Ballet

Princeton University Ballet (PUB), this year’s Artist-in-Residence at Richardson Auditorium, presents its full-length world premiere ballet production of The Great Gatsby on Friday, April 7 and Saturday, April 8 at 7 pm. The production is set to live music and features an original score created by Vince di Mura, Musical Director for the Lewis Center for the Arts, and brings together the collaborative efforts of student and professional musicians, costume designers, faculty members, and PUB dancers and alumni. Tickets are $12 at the door.

The Richardson Auditorium Artist-in-Residence program began in 2014 and provides Princeton student performance groups with opportunities to perform in Richardson and work with professional staff to create, produce, and present their shows.

New Student Group Arts Support

Later this month, Campus Venue Services and our partners in the Lewis Center for the Arts (LCA) will be announcing to the Performing Arts Council (PAC) student arts group a new cross-departmental initiative that is designed to enhance the student arts experience. Beginning this fall, student performers will be granted access to the New South dance and acting studios during nights and weekends, and starting in spring 2018, access to the Matthews Acting Studio. While in use during these periods, Campus Venue Services will oversee the performance spaces and provide support similar to what is currently provided at the Frist Theater. This initiative, made possible by the upcoming relocation of LCA to the new arts complex, will provide much needed additional performance and rehearsal spaces for student artists.
Conference & Event Services

Welcome Ketlinado “Johnny” Bullard
Conference and Event Services is delighted to welcome Ketlinado “Johnny” Bullard to our team as Scheduling and Conference Coordinator. Johnny, a former cook at Butler College, worked with CES last summer as an SEIU Employees International Union (SEIU) Transfer Program participant, during which he quickly established processes and systems to organize our office and summer schedule. His duties include assisting with room scheduling, event operations and general office management. Please stop by 71 University Place to congratulate Johnny on his new role, which he began on April 3.

CES looks forward to participating in the SEIU transfer program again this summer.

Room Release Nears Completion for Spring 2017

Congratulations to the Mail Carrier Team
Print and Mail Services congratulates the Mail Carrier Team on receiving the Team Foundation Award at the first University Services Rewards and Recognition Event on March 22.
Transportation & Parking Services

Bike Sharing at Princeton Surpasses 1,000 Active Members
Since the pilot launched in November 2014, interest and participation in the Zagster bike sharing program has increased, prompting the addition of more available bikes and bike stations on campus. Currently, the program has over 1,000 active members taking an average of 194 trips per week.

Bike sharing is a convenient, healthy and sustainable transportation option available to students, faculty, staff and visitors who wish to rent a bike while on campus.

Members pay a one-time $20 fee, and through a smartphone app (iPhone/Android), can rent one of 100 bikes from any of the 14 bike stations. Rentals less than two hours are free, and after that, are $2 per hour (maximum $20).
Congratulations!
